

Mountaineer Basketball has a tradition of greatness beginning with players like Georgeann Wells, Olivia Bradley and Rosemary Kosiorek. This tradition has continued with the likes of, Kate Bulger, Yolanda Paige, Olayinka Sanni, Meg Bulger and Head Coach Mike Carey. There is no doubt that West Virginia University basketball has a well earned Legacy throughout the history of the program.

The Big 12 Conference is recognized as the most competitive league in the nation. In order to compete for Big 12 championships and national prominence, the Women's Legacy Fund was created to support the WVU women's basketball program.

By supporting the Women's Legacy Fund, you ensure that WVU basketball's proud tradition will continue well into the future. Women's Legacy Fund members receive a number of benefits including coaching staff interaction and an apparel item. In addition, members receive donor recognition and other special benefits.

The Women's Legacy Fund will help to offset two ever-increasing costs associated with top flight basketball programs: recruiting and team travel. All funds in support of the Women's Legacy Fund will go directly towards ensuring that Coach Carey and his staff have the necessary resources to recruit top-tier basketball student-athletes to WVU. Funds will also help support chartered air travel throughout the season which has become a necessity with the rigors of classroom and competition schedules coupled with the inconveniences associated with commercial flights.

All Legacy Fund gifts received in the current giving year are awarded two (2) priority points for every $100 received. All gifts are processed and receipted by the WVU Foundation, Inc.
